Deputy Chief Information Officer

"I believe systems should serve people, not the other way around. Navigating life's challenges taught me to lead by taking ownership, solving problems, and driving progress. At Crawford County Mental Health Center, I get to put that belief into action by building solutions that empower others to do their best work in an organization that makes a difference in people's lives. That's the kind of mission worth showing up for."

About

Cody Page is an Army Infantry veteran turned IT professional with over a decade of experience in systems infrastructure, process automation, and technical problem-solving. His career began at Pittsburg State University, where he worked as a student employee at the campus IT helpdesk (Gorilla Geeks), later advancing to IT Specialist and eventually Computer Systems Manager.

In these roles, Cody developed a passion for building efficient, scalable solutions—automating deployment workflows, implementing systems at scale, and designing tools that made everyday operations smoother. That curiosity evolved into a broader focus on developing web-based tools and infrastructure that solve real-world challenges.

Cody joined Crawford County Mental Health Center in September 2023 as an IT Specialist and later transitioned into the role of Director of Reporting. In this position, he combines his hands-on technical expertise with a strong focus on data systems, operational efficiency, and creating practical tools and reports that help teams support the community with precision and care. Cody currently serves as the agency's Deputy Chief Information Officer.

Education

- Bachelor of Business Administration in Computer Information Systems and Accounting |
Pittsburg State University

Fun Fact:

Cody is a unique blend of Army veteran, IT professional, fitness enthusiast, and lifelong learner. He believes that discipline and curiosity go a long way—whether he's deploying a server or staying consistent in his fitness journey.
